B. Strategic Communications – Community Engagement Coordinator Jill Schacter presented on the Library’s marketing plans, which include the goals to create meaningful dialogue with the public, increase awareness about Library services, and increase engagement in Library services. She takes multiple approaches to achieve these goals, such as engaging with the media, writing perspective papers, creating infographics, partnering with community organizations, and developing documents such as the newsletter and annual report. This year has seen an increase in media coverage for the Library and greater Library presence at public meetings (such as Ward meetings).

Excerpts from Patron feedback:

Dear Ms. Neumeier,

My 12 year-old son comes to the Evanston library frequently and recently asked if there is a Librarian of the Year award for which he could nominate Kevin.

I was informed by the front desk that there is not (though perhaps there could be!?), but that I could contact you to give thanks and commend Kevin for the time he takes to make insightful and sensitive book recommendations, answer inquiries, make crafts with occasionally rowdy or distracted kids and give advice on a variety of topics! Jo-Jo considers Kevin a valued friend.

In fact, we enjoy all parts of the Evanston library. I am a daycare provider, and have found the downstairs librarians also always ready to help and make recommendations.

We are Chicago residents and are very grateful that the City of Evanston allows us to use this wonderful resource.

Sincerely,
Rose Vadnai

Patron email to Adult Services volunteer Career Counselor Darryl Grant:
Darryl,
I hope you’re well!
I’m writing with thanks and appreciation for the time you spent with me early in the summer, giving job-hunting advice and helping me to sharpen my resume. Your help really paid off, as I landed an ideal job last week - after only three weeks of searching! - as I was invited to serve as a Production Assistant at (redacted) here in Evanston. I’ll be with a small, dedicated, hardworking team of people helping to craft some of the finest spirits on the market. Everything about the job is ideal for me, meeting many of the standards I was hoping for in a new line of work.
Again, I appreciate your guidance, wisdom and words of encouragement. You are an important resource for the people of Evanston!
With sincere thanks,

From Bilingual Technology Trainer Sergio Gonzalez, describing some 1:1 tech training appointments:
(Patron A) is the founder of a nonprofit organization. We worked together in order to promote her fundraiser event on the Gofundme website. Her organization is located in Chicago and their mission is to inspire, connect, and equip orphans.
(Patron B) a visual artist. She needed help to improve her PowerPoint presentation before a special presentation at the University of Chicago. We applied special effects on the pictures and deleted some slides so that her presentation would fit into 10 minutes.

From Technology Trainer Craig Stevenson: (Patron C) is learning how to use her Mac computer and iPad. She had been struggling with seemingly easy tasks because of the changes in Gmail interfaces and with App settings on her iPad. We were able to add additional apps and change settings that she had been struggling with on her own.

Neighborhood Services

Both branches hosted Halloween Parties October 27th. Attendance at North was small (Northwestern football), but CAMS had over 80 in attendance in part thanks to promotion by the Main Dempster Mile. We had some great costumes:
